

LAURITZEN GARDENS
ANTIQUES SHOW

Sunday Luncheon

Sunday | September 29, 2024

The Lauritzen Gardens Antiques Show is a one-of-a-kind cultural event. The show's four days bring high quality antique exhibitors, renowned designers, tastemakers and educational opportunities to Omaha. Over the past twenty years, the show has grown in stature to become one of the region's most anticipated events and unique experiences.

The Sunday lecture/luncheon represents the culmination of a weekend full of fabulous events, enlightening speakers, and internationally acclaimed vendors. The energetic atmosphere and looming end of a spectacular four-day extravaganza collide as guests gather one last time under the big tent.

Guests will have the opportunity to enjoy a selection of wines with their meal as they are entertained by captivating stories from our keynote speaker. After guests enjoy a delicious steak luncheon, they can shop the unique collection of antiques exhibitors. This one-of-a-kind experience will benefit Lauritzen Gardens and has become one of the most anticipated events of the weekend.

Quick Facts About the Day:

- The show has captured the imagination of more than 91,500 people and has grown to provide the garden with an important and steady source of revenue, netting more than $11.4 million in twenty years.
- The show has strong support from the Omaha community, but also draws regular attendees from across Nebraska, Colorado, Iowa, Kansas, Missouri, and South Dakota. Arizona, Georgia, New York, and Washington are a few of the numerous other states listed on past attendance records.
- The Sunday Luncheon is one of the most popular events of the entire weekend. Gaining more popularity year after year, the luncheon regularly welcomes over 350 attendees.
- The crowd regularly draws upscale wine lovers, well-traveled shoppers, food enthusiasts and is a large draw for men and couples in the community.
